

Rethinking security in times of the global ecological crisis

AUTHORS MEET CRITICS ROUNDTABLE

At times of growing climatic turmoil and geopolitical rivalry, this public roundtable discusses two important publications of this summer: Divided Environments: An International Political Ecology of Climate Change, Water and Security by Jan Selby, Gabrielle Daoust and Clemens Hoffmann (Cambridge University Press 2022) and Simon Dalby's Rethinking Environmental Security (Edward Elgar 2022). The panelists debate how we can study the complex linkages between climate change, violent conflict, and insecurity and thus address a crucial question of our times: What is security in an age of ecological devastation?

Hybrid roundtable chaired by:

Ursula Schröder, Professor of Political Science,
Universität Hamburg

With: Simon Dalby, Professor of Geography and Environmental Studies,
Wilfrid Laurier University, Waterloo, Ontario

Jan Selby, Professor of Politics and International Relations,
University of Sheffield

Antje Wiener, Professor of Political Science and Global Governance,
Universität Hamburg

Shannon O'Lear, Professor of Geography,
University of Kansas

The roundtable is part of the workshop "Climate security: Toward a critical conceptualization," co-organized by the cluster of excellence "Climate, Climatic Change, and Society," the profile initiative violence and security research at Universität Hamburg and IFSH.
